WHO
For faculty, staff, and administrators from underrepresented groups interested in working in independent schools.

WHAT
The fair gives attendees the opportunity to learn about working in an independent school and speak with representatives about open positions.

Previous fairs have featured keynote addresses by Reveta Bowers, former Head of the Center for Early Education for more than 40 years and board member for numerous organizations and schools; Marisol Leon, a graduate of Crossroads School and a civil rights attorney for the California Department of Justice; and Anita Dashiell-Sparks, Associate Dean of Equity, Diversity & Inclusion and Professor in the USC School of Dramatic Arts and current parent of three children at Harvard-Westlake School.

During the 2021 fair, attendees were treated to a live student panel featuring current independent school students and attendees also had access to panels on teaching in an independent school; resume writing and interviewing; diversity, equity, and inclusion in education; athletics; and working as an administrator in an independent school.
